NIGHT OF TORTURE

BROUGHT A FORTUNE TO ITS IN-NOCENT VICTIM.

wice Strung Up by Lynchers, He der and was in jail in Lafayette. Confessed to Murder and Was Afterward Vindicated and Recovered $25,000 From His Assilants.

Late in the fifties George W. King as the proprietor of hotel in Oxrd, 26 miles from Lafavette, Ind. In we his name as Dr. Lowe. He told ing that he had no money and asked onsented to the arrangement, and ence. owe soon became a favorite with the eople on account of lis companionble disposition and superior intellience. The doctor, however, fell deepand deeper in debt. He had been at he hotel for nearly a year when King eminded him one morning that he ad not paid anything on his board ill for three months. The conversaon, it afterward appeared, was overeard by some one in the hotel, though othing was thought offit at the time. A week after the conversation Rowe ras called out lite at night to see a is disappearance soon was connected ith the conversation that had passed etween him and the landlord about he unpaid board. One night three ntered the hotel and, overpowering complaints, so don't be credulous or king, took him to a woodland adjoinng the town. He recognized the voices of several of his captors and aspecially of the leader, who told him that he was suspected of murdering Rowe and demanded that he confess. King stoutly maintained his innicence, and the leader of the mob ordered his companions "to string him up." A rope was placed around is neck, a dozen men pulled down alstout limb, over which the other end of the rope was thrown, and when the limb was reeased it carried King off his feet and eft him hanging by the neck. He was nearly unconscious when let down and again ordered to confess.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of ough medicine that I did not have in tock," says Mr, C. R. Grandin, the popnlar druggist of Ontario, N. Y. . "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of rial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough for sale by Wight & Bio. and all medicine dealers.

After much delay he was restored sufficiently to understand what was said to him, and he again refused, declaring his innocente and saying he did not know what had become of Rowe. A second time he was strung up and a second time let down, but life was nearly extinct, and he was much longer in being restored than be-

The luckless landford knew he could not pass through another such ordeal and live, so be consented to confess. He purposely lengthened the confession in order to gain time, and said that he and two men, named Rogers and Haggard, had poisoned some whisky and induced Rove to drink it, and after his death they had buried him in a hollow some distance away. It was nearly dayligh, when the confession was made, and the lynchers determined to take King to jail in Lafayette and then arrest Rogers and Haggard.

Before the jail was reached day had dawned, and King recognized his captors as members of the Horse Thief Detective company of Benton, Warren and Tippecanoe counties, nearly all of whom were known to him. Confident of his guilt, the men made no attempt to conceal their identity. So great was the excitement and so intense the feeling against King that he waived examination and went to jail, hoping that something would turn up to establish his innocence.

From the jail at Lafayette King addressed letters to ditors of papers in Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville and other cifes, setting out the circumstances of is confinement and asking them to keep his letter in the papers in hopes that it might fall under Rowe's notice. The appeal was a pathetic one and was copied into many papers throughout the northwest.

Two weeks after its first appearance Dr. Rowe rode into Oxford and, attended by a number of citizens, proceeded to Lafayette, where his appearance caused the immediate release of the accused landlord. In explanation of his disappearance Rowe said he had left his home in the east on account of domestic troubles; that he had learned that his wife was on her way to Ox-

The Last Joke He Tried to Play on His Dear Wife.

"I don't think I'll try any more practical jokes on my wife. They don't pan out well."

"Elucidate." "You see, she has a habit of hoisting the window in our room every night. As I usually go to bed last, she depends on me to hoist it. Sometimes he remedy and after giving it a fair I forget it, and then there's a wild squabble. Frequently she wakes me up in the night and asks me to see if was asleep and didn't hear me. Then I opened the window a little ways and crept into bed. Some time after sash as high as it would go. As I did so I gave a little shriek and then flung my bundle down to the walk below.

It struck with a unit thud, and I dodged behind the curtain to await developments. The room was very dark, and I couldn't see my wife, but I heard her raise herself to a sitting posture. Then she spoke. 'Poor old Jim,' she quietly said, 'he's tumbled out of the window in his raggedest nightshirt. What a spectacle he'll be when they find him in the morning!" Then she lay down again and went to sleep."

ONE MEAL A DAY.

Pronounced a Secret of Human Health and Happiness.

It is by no means impossible that the newest world lecturer will allude to the delays of the single meal reform. The one meal a day plan was successfully practiced by some 80,000,-000 men of the healthiest, wealthiest and most intelligent nations of antiquity for nearly 1,000 years.

No unprejudiced observer can deny that for the vast plurality of our fellow men there is no other practicable way to live up to the principle of the sanitary maxim, "Never to eat till we have leisure to digest."

Nine out of ten laborers have to hurry from the breakfast table to their daily work and cannot count upon more than a few minutes of afternoon meal rest. The same in rolling mills, shipyards, railway yards, workshops and schoolrooms.

Less than a year's time would suffice to give the one meal habit the force of a second nature, and those who would like to form an idea of its universal observance during the classic period of antiquity should read Peter Bayle's dissertation on "Domestic Life In Athens and Rome" or De Quincey's humorous essay, published in the second volume of miscellanies under the title, "Dinner, Real and Reputed."

There would be time for play, for reading, for the enjoyment of art and entertaining conversation.

HAM SMELLING A BUSINESS. Peculiar Occupation For Which Only

Few Are Qualified. The ham smeller's only tools are a long steel trier and his nose. He stands a barrel to keep his clothes from being soiled by the dripping brind and the hams are brought to him, and he plunges his sharp pointed tries into them, withdraws it and passes it wiftly beneath his nose. The trier aways goes down to the knuckle joint.

In testing meat in that manner the man with the trier judges by the lightest shade of difference between the smell of one piece of meat and another. The smell of the meat is almost universally sweet, and that is what he smells. The slightest taint or lieviation from the sweet smell is therefore appreciable. It is not the degree of taint that he expects to find, that the slightest odor that is not sweet.

When he detects an odor, he hrows the meat aside, and if it is not unwholesome it is sold as "rejected" meat, but if it is tainted it goes to the rendering tank. The ham tester smells meat from 7 o'clock in the morning unmust never become jaded or inexact or his usefulness would be at an ead.

Ham testing is not a pursuit dangerous to the health, as tea testing is supposed to be, but the ham smeller with E. H. HINTON, Traffic Manager. a cold in his head is like a pland player who loses his arm in a railroad wreck. -Kansas City Star.
